Dear Keith

Thank you for your letter regarding the teaching of religious studies at the University of Stirling.

Due to low numbers of students choosing to study in this area, we are currently in discussions to secure a sustainable future for religious studies. No decision has been made to cease teaching of religious studies at the University of Stirling.

I am sure you will be pleased to hear that we remain committed to ensuring students on religious degree pathways, including those starting their studies with us in September, will be able to complete their studies.

Yours sincerely

Professor Gerry McCormac
Principal and Vice-Chancellor
